ECLIPSED LAST YEAR'S SUCCESS!

Every Condition Contributed to Make the Masons Second Annual Barbecue a Big Event.

FOUR THOUSAND PEOPLE IN ATTENDANCE.

The barbecue given Thursday in Skillman's Grove, just east of the city, by Cloverport Lodge No. 138 F. & A. was a big event in every respect, and eclipsed the success of the Masons First Annual Barbecue of last year. Every condition contributed to its success and a more suitable day for the affair could not have been selected. Conservative estimates of the attendance place it between three and four thousand and the number of out-of-town people who came was decidedly greater than it was last year. Everybody seemed to be having a good time and not afraid to spend their money. The best of order was preserved by Marshal Willis and a force of deputies. The day was clear and bright. The Masons took in a big sum of money and were much pleased with the success of the day. The merchants did a big business throughout the day and were pleased, too. The people who attended the barbecue returned to their homes content with the enjoyment of the day and hoping they would have the opportunity to attend the Masons Third Annual Barbecue next year.

THE PEOPLE WHO CAME.
People from the country back of the city began to arrive as early as 7 o'clock in the morning and by 10 o'clock the vacant lots near the barbecue grounds were literally covered with vehicles of every description. The 9 o'clock passenger train over the Henderson Route brought about two hundred people from Skillman, Hawesville, Casselton and other points below here on both sides of the Ohio. The Cannetown Commercial Band, also, came on this train. The ladies made a fine appearance in their green uniforms and, after marching through town, went to the barbecue grounds where, throughout the day, it delighted the big crowds with a continuous concert of popular airs.

The excursion over the branch from Fordville came between 10 and 11 o'clock with about 800 people. The five coaches were full and so crowded was the train that many rode on the steps and between the cars and on the coal tender. Immediately following this car was Supt. McCracken's west-bound passenger train. On it came Col. Morris B. Belknap, Republican nominee for Governor and another crowd of people who could not find room on the excursion train. In a private car were Supt. McCracken, of the Henderson Route, and others from Louisville.

THE DINNER.
The larger part of the crowd that came on the morning trains and drove into town went to the barbecue grounds, on reaching the city. Nearly 3,000 took dinner on the grounds. The meats, which were prepared by those famous caterers, Hill John Beattie and Uncle Dick Carter, were excellently cooked and nicely served.

FIELD SPORTS AND CONTENTS.
In the afternoon the races, baby show and other contests took place, as advertised. These attracted much attention and required most of the afternoon.

THE RACES.
At 2:35 o'clock the races began. The spectators had previously taken their positions to see the field sports and were eager for them to begin. The first race, a 50-yard dash, was won by Joe Chapman, of Tolinport, Ind. Mr. Chapman is well-known as the fastest runner in this section of the country and the result of the race was not a surprise. The prize for the winner was a pair of fine shoes, given by F. Fraize. The second race, a 50-yard dash for boys under sixteen years of age, was won by Virvan Pierce, of this city. He easily distanced his opponents and was given a target rifle by Conrad, Payne & Co.

exoneration train left on its return trip and Col. Belknap and other Louisville people left on the regular afternoon train. The Cannetown Commercial Band did not leave until the 7:35 evening train, and rendered an excellent selection just before the train pulled into the depot.

NOTES.
Candidates galore.
Hardinsburg turned out in force. Are you coming again next year? Did you get any confetti—in your month?
Half a dozen barrels of ice water didn't last long.
It will be a green spot in the memory of all present.
Skillman's Grove is voted the ideal place for a barbecue.
The hot chocolate and hot coffee stand did a good business.
Remember the Masons Third Annual Barbecue next year.

People were here from every town in this section of the State. Whistling pipes, confetti and the voices of the bakers kept the air alive.

Everything on the grounds was sold down to the last box of pop-corn. Signs everywhere. El Greco put them up and the merchants got the trade.

The Masons were white cape and their wives and daughters were dainty white aprons.

Mayor Reid made a fine appearance in his white suit and was pursued by the camera fiend.

Who enjoyed the barbecue the most? Why those who sat side by side upon the big hill.

Glendene turned out beautifully. More than a hundred came in on the excursion and many by land.

The big ice cream stand in the center of the grounds drew a large patronage. Seventy gallons of cream were sold.

The county candidates were easily recognized by their excellent photographs in J. D. Babbage, Jr. program and souvenir.

The Masons presided at the lemonade, banana and pop stands, and their wives and daughters daintily served ice cream, lemonade, candies, fruits, etc.

Hundreds of bags of confetti were bought and thrown in handfuls by the crowd, no one caring who the victim was and everybody laughing when a good throw was made.

Prof. Ben Beavin's Great Afro-American minstrel show drew the crowd. It could be seen half a mile. Prof. Beavin's coat; it could be heard all over the grounds—his spelling for his show.

Col. Belknap, with a pleasant smile and a good word for everybody, was entertained by Capt. J. H. Rowland and introduced to scores of prominent Republicans of the county. He showed himself to be a man of the people and made many friends during the day.

The Hon. D. C. Moorman, Democratic nominee for Representative, Matt P. Payne, Republican nominee for Representative, W. B. Ball, Republican nominee for Circuit Court Clerk and Tom J. Moore, Democratic nominee for Circuit Clerk—all were there shaking hands and making friends.

The program and souvenir for the Masons Second Annual Barbecue, published and given away by J. D. Babbage, Jr. proved of great convenience to those interested in the contests and field sports, and of much value, as it showed where to best invest your money in Cloverport.

W. B. Oelze drew the crowd and the trade by having photographs on the grounds and displaying big signs. The barbecue grounds made a beautiful appearance with the big crowd in holiday attire and the white signs and the refreshment stands against the background of the dark green shade trees and hills.

Pete Schumack, an old timer, who lived here in the sixties, and now resides in Little Rock, Ark., was on the grounds greeting old friends and having the time of his life. Said he was awful glad to get back to the old town once more and to shake the hands of his may old friends. Pete is a little grey but is a well preserved man for his age.

ST. ROMUALD'S CONSECRATION

Takes Place Next Thursday—
Ursuline Sisters School Begins Next Monday.

OTHER HARDINSBURG ITEMS.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—The consecration of the beautiful St. Romuald's church will take place next Thursday. The Rev. Thomas O'Donoghue, of Indianapolis, assisted by several other visiting clergy, will conduct the impressive services. The public generally is invited to be present. It will be a great event in the history of the church.

The Ursuline Sisters arrived here last week. They will open their school next Monday.

Has Position in Alabama.
Hardinsburg, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Joe Ball, of Louisville, was down Sunday visiting his mother and other relatives. He will go to Birmingham, Ala., this week, where he has accepted a position with the L. & N. Railroad Company.

Castle of Highland Nobles.
Hardinsburg, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Wm. L. Popham, of Louisville, has succeeded in organizing a Castle of the Highland Nobles. The first meeting will be held on Monday evening, August 31, in the Masonic lodge room.

Fine Entertainment.
Hardinsburg, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—The entertainment given at the City Hall on last Friday night by Germania, the musician, was very fine indeed. All who attended said it was the best they had ever seen anywhere. The entertainments of the Hardinsburg Lyceum are always first-class and should be patronized by more people.

Puts an End to It All.
A grievous wall of times comes as a result of unbearable pain from overtaxed organs. Dizzenia, Buckenhe, liver complaint and Constipation. But thanks to Dr. King's New Life Pills they put an end to it. They are gentle but thorough. Try them. Only 35c. Guaranteed by Short & Haynes Drug Store.

Seven Hills Chattanooga Over.
The Seven Hills Chattanooga at Owensboro closed Thursday night in a blaze of glory after a most successful session of fourteen days. Saturday saw the biggest crowd of the season, twelve thousand people passing through the turnstiles. Many Cloverport people attended the Chattanooga and were highly pleased with its great educational features.

Will Conduct Hancock Institute.
Prof. M. H. Newton, of Owensboro, has been engaged to conduct the Hancock county teachers' institute, which will begin next Monday at Hawesville. Prof. Newton conducted this institute last year in a very satisfactory manner.

New Churches at Glendene.
Glendene, Ky., August 25.—(Special.)—The Baptist church at this place has been completed and the foundation of the Methodist church is being laid.

It has not been announced yet when the dedicatory sermon of the Baptist church will be preached.

Attracting Large Crowds.

The mission boat Megiddo is attracting large crowds at Owensboro. Capt. L. T. Nichols says the world is more irreligious than it was when he was a boy and that the Lord is near at hand. He also says that Adam was not the first man created and has explained that the ark contained more than one window. The service conducted by Capt. Nichols and his band of eighty-three followers are very novel and interesting. The boat will remain at Owensboro two or three weeks, when it is expected to continue its way up the Ohio.

DELEGATES TO THE CONVENTION

(Gaston, Ky., Aug. 25.—Special.)—The State Sunday-School Convention adjourned in Lexington Thursday evening, after the most successful session ever held in the history of Kentucky. The noble band of volunteer soldiers for Christ, the crown of the State, thrilled the audience with brief accounts of work done and the great international workers, who had traveled many miles to attend, spoke words of cheer and encouragement. One of the most striking things was the great number of men and women, busy in their secular vocations, who told of marvellous work done by them in the Sunday-school cause. One young merchant, who had a small room, was as kind of "body of holies," had, in the past year, through his personal efforts, seen twenty-nine young men confess Christ. This example shows the great value of personal effort and contact.

There were 350 delegates present at the convention and with all these workers thoroughly aroused to the importance of the great work to be done Kentucky will soon be in the first ranks.

There were six delegates from Meade county and still more from Breckenridge county and all came home as full of enthusiasm that the Sunday-school will, no doubt, take on new life. The State Executive Committee, in recognition of the good work done in reaching a required standard, presented to all such counties a silk banner, on which is the inscription "By this sign conquer." Meade and Breckenridge counties each is the proud possessor of one of these banners and the county secretary of each county will take pleasure in exhibiting this trophy to all the schools in the county, as the schools did their part in helping to reach this standard.

Among those who attended the convention at Lexington from Breckenridge and Meade counties were: T. B. Henderson, Robert Bell, F. B. Coleman and wife, Mrs. Lela Parks, Messrs. Ermaun Munford, and Blanche Jolly, C. C. Smith and daughter, Nellie, of Breckenridge county and Misses Eva (Arrington), Ethel Bannan, Ethel Fairchild and Messrs. H. L. Bell, C. W. Lewis and—Henderson, of Meade county.

DeWitt is the Name.
When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name DeWitt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world, for burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. Sold by all Druggists.

Wedding at Webster.
Webster, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Mr. Hardin Pollock and Miss Tavia Chism were married here last Sunday at the residence of the bride's father, Wm. Chism, the Rev. J. Argabright officiating. The left immediately for their future home near Raymond.

"What Holds The Future For Me?"
Rev. T. F. Walton will preach in the Lucile Memorial Presbyterian church Sunday, August 30, at 11 o'clock, a. m. Subject "What Holds The Future For Me?" No service in the evening.

Buys Fine Pair of Nules.
Gaston, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Mr. B. B. Bannan, of Meade county, purchased last week of H. L. Bell a pair of mated male mules, nearly sixteen hands high, four years old next spring, for $300. He bought them to use on his fine farm near Irvington.

young, narrow passage. This ended in a stairway fully a quarter of a mile from its beginning. Ascending this stairway one came to a secret panel through which, by pressing a spring, the interior of the chapel was reached. The location of the panel was in one of the recesses in the wall of the chapel, near the altar. It was in this chapel that Yette exchanged her male attire for a loose gown weeks before, and the servant who saw her come from the door at an unearthly hour in the morning believed she had gone there to seek succor from the troubles which oppressed her.

Lorry was impatient to rush forth from his place of hiding and to end all suspense, but Quinox demurred. He begged the eager Anstorian to remain in the passage until the night of the 19th, when all things going well, he might be so fortunate as to reach the princess without being seen. It was the secret hope of the guilty captain that his charge could be induced by the princess to return to the monastery to avoid complications. He promised to inform her highness of his presence in the underground room and to arrange for a meeting. "The miserable fellow could not find courage to confess his disobedience to his trusting mistress. Many times during the day she had seen him hovering near, approaching and then retreating, and had wondered at a little at his peculiar manner. And so it was that Lorry chafed and writhed through a long day of suspense and agony. Quinox had brought to the little room wine, candles, food and bedding, but he utilized only the former. The hours went by and no summons called him to come here. What was to become of him? What was to be the end of this drama? What would the night, the morning, bring him?

It was 9 o'clock in the evening when Quinox returned to the little room. The waiting one had looked at his watch a hundred times, had run in and out up and down the passage in quest of the secret exit, had shouted aloud in the frenzy of desperation. "Have you seen her?" he cried, grasping the newcomer's hand.

"I have, but before God, I could not tell her what I had done! Your visit will be a surprise, I fear a shock."

"Then how am I to see her? Fool! Am I to wait here forever?"

"Have patience! I will take you to her tonight, and then you will see her tomorrow morning she signs away the northern province, and her instructions are that she is not to be disturbed tonight. Not even will she see the Countess Hagmar after 9 o'clock. It breaks my heart to see the sorrow that shadows in the castle tonight. Her husband, who wretches on being alone, and Bassot, the new guard, has orders to admit no one to her apartments. It is ill, and I have promised that a substitute shall relieve me. If 9 o'clock. You are to be the substitute. Here is a part of an old uniform of mine, and here is a coat that belonged to Dan, who was killed in the battle. These exchange the clothes you now have on for those. I apprehend no trouble in reaching her door, for the household is in alarm and the halls seem barren of life."

He threw the bundle on a chair, and Lorry at once proceeded to don the contents. In a very short time he was dressed in the soldier's garments in a neat fitting uniform of the royal guard. He was trembling violently, chilled to the bone with nervousness, as they began the ascent of the stairs leading to the chapel. The crisis in his life, he felt, was near at hand.

Under the stealthy hand of Quinox the panel opened, and they listened inently for some moments. There was no one in the dimly lighted chapel, so he stepped forward and unlocked the door the captain planned to a lance which stood against the wall near by.

"I am to carry you to her," Quinox said softly. Then he cautiously peered forth. A moment later they were in the broad hall, softly striding toward the distant stairway. Lorry had been instructed to proceed without the least sign of timidity. They passed several attendants in the hall and heard a murmur of surprise as they came with some one in an anteroom. As they neared the broad steps which should come tripping down but Harry Anstorian. He saluted Quinox and walked rapidly down the corridor, evidently taking his departure after a call on the countess.

"How goes your hostage," said the captain grimly. It had required all of Lorry's self-possession to restrain the cry of joyful recognition. The steward, they went, settling down to bed and gentlemen coming down, and were soon before the apartments of the princess. A tall guard stood in front of the door.

"This is your relief, Bassot. You may go," said Quinox, and with a careless glance at the strange soldier the sick man trudged off down the hall, glad to seek his bed.

"Is she there?" whispered Lorry, dizzy and faint with expectancy.

"Yes. This may mean your death and mine, sir, but you would do it. Will you explain to her how I came to play her ruse?"

"She shall know the truth, good friend."

"After I have gone twenty paces down the hall do you rap on the door. She may not admit you at first, but do not give up. If she bid you enter or asks your mission, enter quickly and close the door. It is unlocked. She may swoon or scream, and you must prevent either, if possible."

"I shall return and you must go back to the passage."

"Never! I have come to save her and her country, and I intend to do so by surrendering myself this very night."

"I had hoped to dissuade you. But, sir, you cannot do so tonight. You forget that this visit compromises her."

"True. I had forgotten. Well, I'll go back with you, but tomorrow I am your prisoner, not your friend."

"Be careful," cautioned the captain as he moved away. Lorry feverishly tapped his knuckles on the panel of the door and waited with motionless heart for the response. It came not, and he opened the door, a strange fear darting into his mind.

"Well?" came from within, the voice he adored.

"I have come to save her and her country, and I intend to do so by surrendering myself this very night."

"I had hoped to dissuade you. But, sir, you cannot do so tonight. You forget that this visit compromises her."

"Am I awake?" she murmured, turning to face her bewildered, questioning husband. "Is it truly you?" she asked. Her face, her joy was short-lived. An expression of terror came to her eyes, and there was agony in the fingers that clasped his arm. "Did you come here?" she cried. "It is madness! How and why came you to this room?"

He laughed like a delighted boy and lightly narrated the events of the past twenty-four hours, ending with the trick that gave him entrance to her room.

"And all this to see me?" she whispered.

"To see you and to save you. I hear that Gabriel has been angling for you, and that you are to give up half of the kingdom tomorrow. Tell me everything. It is another reason for my coming."

Sitting beside him on the divan, she told of Gabriel's visit and his dismissal, the outlook for the next day, and then sought to convince him of the happiness it afforded her to protect him from an undesired death. He obtained for Quinox the royal pardon until landed him to the skies. No mischief were the numerous, so realistic the sensations that possessed them, that neither thought of the consequences if he were to be discovered in her room. He was guided as one of her guardsmen.

He forgot the real import of his reckless visit until she commanded him to stand erect before her that also might see what manner of soldier he was. With a laugh, he leaped to his feet and stood before her unattained. She looked back at him with a smile and surveyed him through the glowing, impassioned eyes which slowly closed as if to shut out temptation.

"You are a perfect soldier," she said, her lashes parting ever so slightly.

"No more perfect than you," he cried. She remembered, with confusion, her own inexperience, but it was making of him to remember it. Her attention to his uniform threw his thoughts into the channel through which they had been surging tumultuously up to the moment that found him tapping at her door. He had not told her of his degradation, and the task grew harder as he saw the sparkling blue lightning and brighter in her eyes.

"You are a brave soldier, then," she substituted. "It required courage to come to me, and I am sure you are manly enough to set me at sight, a pack of bloodhounds."

"I should have been a miserable coward, and to stay there while you are so bravely facing disaster alone down here. I came to help you, as I should."

"But you can do nothing, dear, and you only make matters worse by coming to me. I have fought so hard to overcome the desire to be near you, I have struggled against myself for days and days, and I feel won the battle when you came to pull my walls of strength down about my ears. Look, on my desk is a letter I was writing to you. You shall not read it. No one shall ever know what it contains."

She darted to the desk, snatched up the sheets of paper and held them over the wasted lamp. He stood in the middle of the room, a feeling of intense desolation settling down upon him. How could he lose this woman?

"Tomorrow night Quinox is to take you from the monastery and conduct you to a distant city. Lorry had been instructed to proceed without the least sign of timidity. They passed several attendants in the hall and heard a murmur of surprise as they came with some one in an anteroom. As they neared the broad steps which should come tripping down but Harry Anstorian. "Well?" came from within, the voice he adored.

"I shall never see you again—God help me to say this—I shall never allow you to see me again. I tell you, I could not bear it. The weakest, the strongest of God's creatures is woman." She started suddenly, half rising. "Did you ever see me come to my room?" Was Quinox sure?

"We passed people, but no one knew me. I will go to you distressed over how it would be."

"It is not that—not that. Some eye may have seen you. I have a strange fear that they suspect me and that I am being betrayed. Where is Captain Quinox?"

"He said he would return for me in an hour. The time is almost gone. How it would be."

"You must go back to the monastery tonight! Oh, how I pray that you may reach it in safety! And you must leave this wretched country at once. Will you see if Quinox is outside the door? If quick! I am and with fear that you may be found here, that you may be taken before you can return to St. Valentine's."

He arose and stood looking down at the intense face, all alive with the battle between temptation and self-control, as one of her guardsmen.

"I am not going back to St. Valentine's," he said slowly.

"But it is all arranged for you to start from there tomorrow. You can not escape the city guard except through St. Valentine's."

"You must not try to escape the what you mean?" she cried, bewildered.

"I am not going to leave Edelweiss, dearest. It is my intention to surrender myself to the authorities."

"For what sake do you say that?" she asked, her face pale with fear.

"You told me this after all I have done to save you. And you are jesting. I should have known."

He sat down and drew her to his side. Some moments passed before he could speak.

"I cannot and will not permit you to make a sacrifice for me. The proposition of Honor is known to me. If you promise me for trial, you are to have a ten years' extension. My duty is plain. I am no cowardly creature and I am not afraid to face my enemies. At the worst I can die but once."

"But once," she repeated as if in a dream.

"I came here to tell you of my decision, to ask you to save your hands, to let you go, to let me go, to let me go. I would die a thousand times to serve you and yours."

"After all I have done—after all I have done," she murmured, pleadingly.

"No, no! You shall not. You are more to me than all my kingdom, than all the people in the world. You have made me love you, you have caused me to defend the throne which separates us, you have made me pray that I might be a pauper, but you shall not force me to destroy the wife of the king that lingers in my heart. You shall not crush the love that there may be in me—some day."

"A some day? Some day when you will be mine?" he cried.

"I will not say that, but for my sake for my sake go away from this place. Save yourself. You are all I have to live for." Her arms were about his neck, and her lips were pressed to his heart like great-throated birds.

"You forget the thousands who love and trust you. Do they deserve to be wronged?"

"No, no, no, that, how I have suffered because of them! I have betrayed them, have stolen their rights and made them a nation of beggars. But I could not for all this treason, have an innocent man condemned—nor could my people ask that of me. You cannot condemn me. It must be as I wish, oh, why does not Quinox come for you?"

She arose and moved the door cautiously.

He was revolving a selfish, cowardly calculation to love and injustice, when a sharp tap was heard at the door. Leaping to his feet he whispered:

"Quinox! He has come for me. Now to get out of this room without being seen!"

The Princess Yette ran to him and, pinning her hands on his shoulders, cried with the fervency of despair:

"You will go back to the monastery? You will leave Graustark? For my sake for my sake?"

"Yes," he cried hoarsely.

"The door flew open, a attendant saluted, and in stepped—Gabriel! (TO BE CONTINUED.)"

Hole in the Lungs. There are thousands of men and women, as well as ever, with holes in their lungs: consumption stopped. Consumption stopped is consumption cured. What does it?

Some check in the way of life and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil. With the emulsion, give some attention to circumstances: change from a dark damp close room to a sunny dry airy one; from city to country; from hard to an easy life; indoors to outdoors.

A hole in the lungs once healed is no worse than a too-tight waist or waistcoat. Take the emulsion, and give it a chance to heal the wound.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidneys.

Kidney trouble causes quick or uneasy heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is overworking in pumping thick, kidney poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Klinger's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles.

You may have a sample bottle by mail. Name of Swamp Root, free, also pamphlet telling of its cures, sent out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Klinger & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp Root. Dr. Klinger's Swamp Root, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Masonic barbecue was a splendid success in every way.

It is easy to make a success of anything if you know how.

It's a mighty good thing for any town or community to be in touch with its railroad.

Cloverport closed a deal yesterday for another manufacturing plant Full particulars next week.

Now for the Centennial Celebration.
This will be a great event in the history of Cloverport

Breckenridge county never had a finer prospect for crops. Corn and tobacco is simply out of sight.

This edition of the News is a good paper to send to your friends. Extra copies only three cents, mailed to any address.

The pay train came in yesterday and dropped $4,000 or $5,000 in our midst as it does every month, besides about $10,000 in other parts of the country. The pay train is a welcome visitor

Cot Edwin Forbes writes that he can furnish some old-time relics connected with the early days of Clover-port for our coming Centennial. He writes enthusiastically of the event and says we ought to have it by all means

No people on earth make a better showing than does Breckenridge county people. Sober industries, man-looking, intelligent, cheerful, hospitable and all other qualities that go to make up an ideal American citizenship. We are proud of them, from the poorest to the richest. God bless them all.

The Masons of Bowlingville Lodge
No. 228 will give a barbecue at Irvington next Friday. The members of this lodge and the citizens in general were liberal patrons of the barbecue given at this place last week. They expect a large crowd from this town.
And they ought to have it. We advise everybody who can, to go. It is done them. We ought to be neighborly, help one another. Do unto others as you would have them do to you, is a mighty good rule to live by. It applies to barbecues as well as other things. Cloverport should send a large delegation to Irvington.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, they cannot reach diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional medicine.
Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rattling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.,

IS RUNNING THIS WEEK.

The Polk Packing Company's canning factory started on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and is in operation this week. The factory would have begun running Thursday but some trouble was had with the capping press.

Between sixty and seventy people are employed by the factory. This is about half a full house, as between 125 and 150 hands are needed. This will include seventy more women and girls, who will be employed as peeler.
Only none people will be employed provided a sufficient number can be secured in this vicinity. The report that twelve Creole women are coming from Nashville, Tenn. to work in the cannery seems to be unfounded.

Up to Tuesday morning 988 bushels of tomatoes had been received and 1,300 cans put up. The tomatoes are canning fast and are being delivered in proper quantities to keep the cannery in regular operation.

BRING SUIT FOR WAGES.

Thirty-two former employees of the Patton brick-yard have brought suit against the Perfect Combustion Company of America, and the Central Lay Product Company, successors to the Patton Vitrified Brick Company. The employees have put in claims for wages for labor performed at the Patton yard during the past summer.
All the claims amount to between $500 and $1,000. Three parties have filed their suits in the Breckenridge Circuit Court, to be tried in the October term. They are Chas. E. Kell, for $310; David H. Sweeney, Sr., $185; and Chas. Bohrer, $165. The claims of the other plaintiffs range from $4 to $50. Their suits have been filed in court in this city. Hal Murray, of this city, and Gus Brown, of Hardinsburg, are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Evansville and return, will be made on September 14 to 19 inclusive, good returning Sept. 19.

Monday evening the 7:35 westbound passenger train over the Henderson Route was delayed about forty-five minutes in this city by the engine striking a cow and being derailed.
The accident occurred on lower Railroad street in front of Dr. J. L.
Moorman's residence.

The cow, which was killed belonged to Dr. Moorman's Engine. No 15 came up from the shops and pulled the derailed engine back on the track.

BIG MEETING OF BAPTISTS.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Prominent Baptists from all parts of the county held a meeting at their church here last Monday.
The object of the meeting was to take such steps as were necessary to form an association which should include only Breckenridge county within its bonds. Their churches in this county are now members of Goshen Association, which includes parts of several counties, and the inconvenience in attending the yearly meetings together with the large increase in the membership, renders this step justifiable. Resolutions looking to that end were adopted unanimously, and the members of the churches who were present express the opinion that an association such as they wish will eventually be formed.

F. T. Heyser has bought from Short & Haynes forty feet of the Jas.
Moorman lot west of the Masonic Temple, on which he will build a one story brick business house. Dr. F.
L. Lightfoot has bought the remaining twenty-two feet and will build a four-room brick office building.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or dependency invariably precedes suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition, which makes suicide likely.
At the first thought of self-destruction tonic and nerve-will strengthen the nerves and build up the system.

It's also a great Stomach and Liver

FISHING AND HUNTING.

The angler will find in Utah ample opportunities to indulge in his favorite sport. The mountain streams are stocked with gamey trout and the but little less gamey black bass abounds in the waters of Utah Lake. In season good duck hunting can be had on Utah Lake, the Jordan and around the pools and lagoons of the Salt Lake Valley.
On the mountain sides grouse are plentiful, and larger game can be found on the mountain ranges of the Uintah and Uncompaghe reservation.

To enable people to reach these favored localities without unnecessary expenditure of time or money, the UNION PACIFIC has put in effect very low rates and splendid train service from Missouri river. Accommodations provided for all classes of passengers.

Beall Grinnell made his last trip for the season Sunday as his wife and child will go to Louisville this week to remain.

Mrs. G. H. Casperke and Mrs. G. H. Wurdell have returned from Owensboro, where they attended the Chautauqua.

Ed. Yeakel and wife have returned from Cincinnati where he purchased a large stock of fall goods, which are arriving daily.

T. B. Howard has had a porch built the entire length of his home with other improvements, which add materially to appearance and convenience.

We all enjoyed Mrs. Ella Gregory's article "A Trip to Niagara Falls," in last week's Messenger. She certainly is gifted in diction and a flow of language.

Mrs. Angustine, her daughters, Nona and Willie, and a gentleman friend, of Louisville, were guests of Mrs. Taylor Haynes Sunday, who invited several friends to meet them.

Charlie Casperke hit exactly the right day at the Chautauqua when scientific experiments were being conducted in wireless telegraphy. Charlie is a second Marconi when it comes to interest and investigating along this line.

During the middle and last part of the summer days the social whiffs are sluggish and nothing of interest is occurring. People will flock to the Croyden fair this week. Miss Lydia Powell has been asked to act as one of the judges in the fancy work department.

Gough Grinnell and Miss Lena Ne-vitt attended the fair hop at Shepherdsville last Thursday evening.

DYSPEPSIA IS CURED BY DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY. IT MAKES WEAK STOMACHS STRONG.

Gough reports the entertainments and people in that county as well as the very swell.

The Rev. J. L. Hart preached morning and evening last Sunday. He will begin protracted services next Sunday night at New Highland.

Miss Tennessee Hamilton and her aunt, Mrs. Mollie Hatcher, have returned from their Eastern trip. Mr. Hatcher is here en route to her home in Joplin, Mo.

"The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," an old saying meaning that to win a man you must feed him well.

If this is not true it is still true in another sense that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Many persons imagine that they have heart disease when it is only indigestion.

This is how it comes about. The stomach distended by gas, crowds the heart and gives the feeling that the trouble is in the heart.

If you don't know that you have heart trouble, try using Walther's Peptonized Port and see if it does not relieve you.

Miss Katie Moorhead, one of Cloverport's charming young ladies, is visiting at Mr. W. R. Moorhead's.

Dr. R. L. Mercer, of Louisville, and Mr. J. Nick Mercer, of Dallas, Texas, spent Sunday at E. A. Moore's.

The many friends of Mr. John Keith regret to hear of his death, which occurred at his home in Irvington.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cary have recently returned from a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Livingston, at Kingfisher, Oklahoma.

Miss Ollie Hoskins has returned from Owensboro after two weeks' spent with relatives there and is attending the Chautauqua.

One hundred and two excursion tickets were sold here last Thursday. Some idea of the number of Glendeneers attending the barbeque at Cloverport may be had from this to say nothing of those who drove through.

Stiles Howard and Owen Hunter left last Saturday for State College, Lexington. This is Senior year for the boys, after which we predict for both of them prominent, lucrative positions.

School opened last Monday with Prof. T. J. Moore, principal and Miss Ella Robertson, assistant. This is to be one of the best schools in the county and parents who do not urge their children to be prompt in attendance are failing short of their duties.

Misses May Dempster, Nancy and Lizzie Fisher were driving near Rockvale, last Saturday, afternoon, when the horses overturned and they were all thrown out, after which the horse became frightened and ran off tearing the buggy to pieces. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back—this the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will send you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address: J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass.
